THE PAPER FOR ALL HACKNEY PEOPLE

Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses in Hackney

Issue 224 25 January 2010

All is revealed

THE doors of the newly restored Stoke Newington Town Hall are being thrown open to the public.

Residents and local businesses are invited to a series of showcase events being put on by the Council.

The restoration project, funded by the Council, began in June 2008, and has carefully preserved the original features of architect J Reginald Truelove's Art Deco masterpiece for future generations.

For details of the showcase, how to book the venue, and pictures of the stunning interior, see pages 8&9

WINDS OF CHANGE

By Emma Britton

RESIDENTS have overwhelmingly said 'yes' to the idea of having a wind turbine on Hackney Marshes to generate green energy.

Eighty seven per cent of people who responded to the recent public consultation said that they were in favour of the proposal. The Olympic Delivery Authority is already going ahead with one wind turbine on Eton Manor in Waltham Forest and as part of this there is an opportunity for the Council to install a second wind turbine at East Marsh to generate local renewable energy as part of the legacy of the 2012 Games. The two together would generate enough green electricity to power Hackney's main Council buildings and nearly all of its street lighting.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "At the beginning of the consultation I said that, although I was enthusiastic about the idea, it would be for Hackney residents to decide if the proposal was to be taken forward. As 87 per cent are in favour, of the more than 700 people who took part, the Council will now look at the next stages to make this idea a reality.

"Although minimising energy usage is the highest priority, this is an opportunity to generate truly local green energy to power things for the community. It would also deliver a further cut in carbon emissions, helping to keep Hackney one of the greenest boroughs in London."

Mayor Pipe added: "A key stage to come will be for any chosen turbine operator to satisfy the planning authorities that there will be a minimal impact on the environment, such as wildlife."

The Council is expected to be able to purchase energy at a cost lower than traditional sources, such as coal.

It also expects to receive rent for the land the turbine would occupy, which would be invested in sports facilities on the Marshes.

The Council will now begin a procurement process with the aim of buying power generated by both turbines, for up to 25 years. If a good deal can be secured, the Council will move to the next stage. The chosen turbine operator would then have to submit a detailed planning application for the proposed East Marsh turbine, giving residents a further chance to comment.

Message from the Mayor

A stunning asset alongside vital services

It was a great pleasure to welcome local businesses and residents to see the restored Stoke Newington Town Hall and Assembly Rooms, ahead of the public opening.

The town hall's restored council chamber

The old council chamber, the hall and the frontage of this Grade II listed 1930s building have been carefully restored and made fully accessible for weddings, shows and other local events.

As you can see from this edition of Hackney Today, the results of the restoration job are stunning, and I would urge all residents to take advantage of the upcoming showcase events to see this for themselves. The public reaction has been overwhelmingly positive. The £8 million investment in this historic community building has met with a great deal of support, with many people asking me why the Council didn't do this sooner.

It would have been great to do it sooner, but my first priority when I became Mayor was to improve Hackney's infrastructure like roads and streetlights, and basic services like waste and recycling. As well as making services better, we have been able to restore some of the borough's treasures such as London Fields Lido, and Clapton Library, and build brand new facilities such as the state of the art library at Dalston which is currently under construction, and the new public service centre behind the Town Hall.

All this investment has been fully paid for without the council borrowing money or getting into costly PFI deals, and it hasn't put a penny on Council Tax, which continues to be frozen at its 2005 level. It is important for councils to get the basics right, but assets like Stoke Newington Town Hall and the Lido help to make a place special, alongside modern public facilities to provide the excellent services residents deserve.

Shining example

By
Marcel Reinard

THE Prime Minister welcomed visitors from one of the country's most improved primaries to the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Pupils from Hoxton's St Monica's – along with teachers and parents – met Gordon Brown and Secretary of State Ed Balls during a trip to the Department on 4 January.

The event was to show some of the strategies the school uses to teach Maths and English. A temporary classroom was set up in the department's library, where the ministers chatted to pupils about their education. Headteacher Violet Richardson said: "The children brought examples of maths games used in the classroom and explained to the PM how they help learning. They were great ambassadors for Hackney."

Ofsted placed St Monica's above the national average in its 2009 inspections, which measured criteria including Standard Assessment Tests (SAT) results and support for the well being of pupils.

From September this year, 30,000 pupils are set to benefit from Government programmes that will ensure any child falling behind in English or Maths in the earliest years of primary school will be offered extra support.

Leading the UK on improvement

Hackney is one of the most improved UK areas for 14-19 education in England, according to data from the Department of Children, Schools and Families. In total 52.2 per cent of pupils achieved five good GCSEs, including English and Maths, in 2009, a figure higher than the national average and up 9.6 percentage points on the previous year, the largest increase in the country. All but two of Hackney's secondary schools beat the national average.

The data also revealed that Hackney was the second most improved authority nationally for post-16 results per student, and the third most improved per subject. Cllr Rita Krishna, Hackney's Cabinet Member for Children and Young People said: "These results are outstanding and a testament to the hard work of teachers and students, as well as to the raising of standards across the board in Hackney's secondary schools. Going above the national GCSE average is a milestone, and I am confident that results will continue to improve."

“The children brought examples of the maths games they use in the classroom”

By
Marcel Reinard

SIX people who live or work in Hackney and make a difference to the lives of others have been celebrated in the New Year Honours List.

Receiving an OBE for Services to Science is Oxford University professor, Marcus du Sautoy, from Stamford Hill.

Marcus has shown his enthusiasm for popularising maths through TV shows such as BBC's Mind Games. He has succeeded Richard Dawkins as Simonyi Professor for the Public Understanding of Science.

Also being made an OBE is Cyrus Todiwala of the Café Spice Namasté Restaurant Group. Having received an MBE in 2000, the South Hackney entrepreneur's new award is for services to the hospitality industry and promotion of ethical food.

Upper Clapton's Imelda Redmond, Chief Executive of Carers UK, is awarded a

CBE for her work improving rights for carers. She said: “It was a huge honour and I'm really lucky to work in the voluntary sector – I've had a fantastic time in my 12 years here.” Imelda is on the board of Homerton Hospital and the board of governors for Homerton's City Academy. Helen Dent also received a CBE. She has spent 14 years as Chief Executive of Dalston-based charity Family Action, which has been in Hackney for 40 years. Helen said: “The charity has grown and developed so much, and it is on behalf of everyone at Family Action that I receive this honour.”

Others to make the list were Foluke Akinlose who received an MBE for services to the Creative Industries for her Hoxton-based e-magazine Precious Online, and Nicholas Howard, Parliamentary Clerk in the Prime Minister's Office, from Stoke Newington who was awarded an OBE.

Elaine Folivi, 61, of Victoria Park Road, E9, pleaded guilty to three charges of misuse of a Blue Badge and received a conditional discharge of 12 months as well as being ordered to pay costs of £504.

Anna Luckhurst, 36, of Cranbrook Road, IG1, also pleaded guilty to three charges of Blue Badge misuse and was given a 12-month conditional discharge and costs of £504 to pay. Peter Smith, 72, of Thorne Close, E11, pleaded guilty to one offence of using a photocopied Blue Badge. He was fined a total of £120 plus £15 surcharge and costs of £336.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “The Council takes the abuse of Blue Badges extremely seriously. The prosecutions, brought to court by our dedicated team of Blue Badge fraud investigators, send out a clear message that those abusing blue badges will not get away with it.”

High on gay friendly index

HACKNEY is one of the top-10 gay-friendly councils in the country, according to Stonewall's Workplace Equality Index. The 2010 Index, which showcases Britain's top-100 employers for lesbian, gay and bisexual people, ranks Hackney at number 43, the third highest rating for a London authority, and 10th highest of all councils.

Hackney is one of only five London boroughs to make it into the Index, and one of 24 nationwide. Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Karen Alcock, whose portfolio covers Equalities, said: “The Council is committed to ensuring a workplace environment free from discrimination, and where all staff can reach their potential. We know that Hackney is a diverse borough, and being recognised within Stonewall's Workplace Equality Index is a clear demonstration of the Council's commitment to promoting equality for all.”

Rankings in the index are based on a survey from Stonewall covering policy and practice, which is designed to provide an accurate sample of workplace culture. The Council also participates in Stonewall's Diversity Champions programme, which aims to promote LGB equality in the workplace and eliminate discrimination on the grounds of sexual orientation.

Hackney will be celebrating LGBT History Month with a series of events in February. For details see page 20.

Residents overwhelmingly back proposals for a wind turbine on Hackney Marshes

A 120 metre high wind turbine could be placed on Hackney Marshes by 2013 now that residents have backed the proposal

Airing your views

By Emma Britton

MORE than 700 people have given their views on proposals to put a wind turbine on Hackney's East Marsh.

The public consultation, which ran from 19 October to 14 December 2009, was carried out by the Council after an opportunity was created to put the turbine on the Marsh to generate local renewable energy as part of the legacy of the 2012 Games.

Residents attended public meetings and library drop in sessions, as well as completing paper and online questionnaires.

“Preferably locals would benefit from reduced street lighting costs”

Eighty seven per cent of residents who took part thought that the wind turbine was a good idea – even if it meant the loss of access to green space. Of these, 53.5 per cent thought the Council should go ahead with the scheme, regardless of where the electricity was used. While the other 33.8 per cent were in support, provided the electricity could be used in Hackney for the benefit of the local community. Only 12.6 per cent said the turbine proposal was unacceptable under any circumstances.

Residents had the opportunity to add comments to their questionnaire answers. Among the issues raised was the potential environmental impact of a turbine.

Some people wanted assurances that local wildlife – especially the bats and birds that inhabit the marsh – would not be adversely affected. Others were worried the turbine would be noisy, or would have a negative visual impact on the area.

“I do not agree with anything that would mean building on, or taking away any part of the Marshes”

At the other end of the spectrum, a number of people wanted to know why the Council is only proposing a single turbine and not a wind farm.

“I'd support more than one wind turbine as long as it was safe for people”

All the concerns raised, along with other ideas and comments, are being considered. Planning applications from potential operators of the turbine would need to include full Environmental Impact Assessments to ensure minimal effects on wildlife.

The Council is always exploring ways to cut the borough's carbon footprint. Last year, it was one of 10 local authorities nationwide to commit to a 10 per cent cut in carbon emissions in 2010.

NEWS IN BRIEF

North London Line closure

RESIDENTS are invited to attend information sessions about the temporary closure of Hackney's North London Line (NLL) stations from 20 February to 1 June.

Staff from the NLL will be on hand to answer questions at Dalston Kingsland Station on 28 January; at Hackney Central and Homerton stations on 1 February; and at Hackney Wick Station on 2 February. All sessions take place from 4.30–7.30pm. During the closure rail replacement bus service are due to run every 20 minutes, six days a week, serving all NLL stations in Hackney. On Sundays this will be reduced to two buses an hour. Transport for London (TfL) said the closure from Gospel Oak to Stratford is necessary so it can carry out major engineering works ahead of the introduction of longer trains and more frequent services.

Holocaust Memorial Day

RESIDENTS are invited to attend a Holocaust Memorial Day (HMD) commemoration ceremony on 27 January.

The ceremony will begin in the Council Chamber at Hackney Town Hall at 10.30am. Seats will be allocated on a first-come-first-served basis. At around 11.30am, Speaker of Hackney Cllr Muttalip Ünliür will lay a floral tribute at the Holocaust Memorial Tree in the Town Hall Square.

The theme for HMD 2010 is 'Legacy of Hope'. This year is the 65th anniversary of the day in 1945 when the Soviet Army liberated the Auschwitz-Birkenau concentration camp. For info visit: www.hmd.org.uk

Shoreditch high line proposal

A NEW lease of life is being planned for the historic Bishopsgate Goods Yard, which has been disused for 40 years. Up to 2,000 new homes, including family and affordable housing, along with a health centre, community facilities and employment space, are part of the vision for the site's future regeneration in new planning guidance. An exciting feature of proposed development will be the creation of a high-level public park above the Grade II listed Braithwaite Viaduct, with links to existing green spaces such as Allen Gardens. This would create a Shoreditch version of the famous New York High Line park, with up to 1.7 hectares of open space created for the community.

The 4.7 hectare site will be home to the new Shoreditch High Street Station on the extended East London line when it reopens in the summer.

Hackney and Tower Hamlets Councils and the Mayor of London approved the planning guidance to ensure future development is of high quality and enhances the area.

Welcome to a new era

The newly restored Stoke Newington Town Hall is throwing open its doors to residents and local businesses with a showcase of exciting events celebrating the culture of Hackney

A JAZZ and soul party and an evening of acoustic music are among the line-up confirmed for a showcase to mark the reopening of Stoke Newington's Art Deco gem.

Other offerings during the Reveal Showcase, being put on by the Council from 27 to 30 January, include a tea dance for older people, a health fair, and an exhibition of work by local artists.

A function on 21 January gave local business people a chance to meet the venue's dedicated events management team, as well as watch a dazzling dance display with a 1940s theme.

KEY FACT

Stoke Newington Town Hall was built from 1935-37 by architect J Reginald Truelove, following a design competition

Hackney's favourite pantomime dame, actor Clive Rowe, was at the event for businesses, which saw some colourful turns from dancers

Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Karen Alcock, said: "The Council is delighted that the restoration of Stoke Newington Town Hall has been successfully completed, bringing back into the heart of the community a well-loved and much-missed landmark.

"We look forward to welcoming residents, community groups and visitors to this wonderful venue to enjoy an exciting range of events, to celebrate weddings, birthdays and other milestones, and much more."

The Grade II listed building will officially reopen on 1 February, and residents and businesses are invited to take a look around and see for themselves how it has been brought back to its former glory during a 'house warming' weekend on 6 and 7 February.

Stoke Newington Town Hall has been carefully refurbished to preserve its original features and will provide two unique spaces for community use and private hire – the Council Chamber and Assembly Hall.

The golden age of soul

All stories by
Marcel Reinard

BOUNCING balloons, pastel colours, Gary Davies, it seemed just another day on the set of 1980s 'Top of the Pops' (TOTP).

"Our manager said 'you've got to be outrageous, really go for it'. So some designer friends helped us to buy Arabian Nights-type clothes and we worked out ways to look at the camera, and moves like 'stroke the piano, stroke the piano'," recalls Lee John, lead singer of 1980s soul band Imagination.

And history was made – three men seductively shimmying in golden hot pants is difficult to forget. As one commentator said about their first screen performance: "Imagination were here to stay and they hit their audience right between the thighs."

Lee was born in Hackney Hospital, now Homerton. He moved to New York with his father aged seven after his parents split up, leaving behind family in Stoke Newington and Finsbury Park.

"I got my first recording contract at 12, and three years later I was on the same label as Irene Cara and Stephanie Mills."

He returned in the mid-1970s to the UK older, wiser and full of funk. Let loose on the UK music scene he met with Ashley Ingram and sang back up for bands. "One of them was Errol (Kennedy)'s group at the time. Errol has a great feel of music: he wasn't a singer but he understood how music combines with vocals perfectly." The three formed Imagination.

“It almost didn't happen, it was only because someone else dropped out”

"I was given a rough version of a demo and I went home, sat on my mum's kitchen table and wrote the lyrics for 'Body Talk'," he explained.

Body Talk peaked at 44 in the charts – four outside the cut-off for a TOTP performance. "It almost didn't happen, it was only because someone else dropped out we were called at the last minute."

The next day 'that performance' was all the viewers were talking about; the single hit number four and the album stayed in the charts for more than 50 weeks. Their career success through hits such as 'Just an Illusion' and 'Flashback' brought platinum discs, nine gold and more than a dozen silver internationally.

Known for infectious overdubs, spectacular shows and outlandish costumes: "Our budgets were tight but we tried to make it look like a million dollars. It's funny, when critics thought we were American we were cool, funky; when they found out we lived in North London, they said we were camp," recalls Lee.

"For one 'Just an Illusion' performance, I'd developed an allergy and my face puffed up. So I just put one arm of my bodysuit over my head, put a cloak over me and asked them to use loads of smoke to hide my face." No one was any the wiser and this classic performance from TOTP can be found on Youtube.

Over the next few years, Imagination continued apace making dance records and Lee branched out into TV. Nowadays, Ashley works with singer Des'ree and runs a music school in Canada, while Errol is with an Imagination tribute band. Lee looks back at their time together fondly. "It was a great period but I don't dwell on it. I now do a lot of jazz, some club records and I'm working on a British soul documentary.

"For a while I couldn't look at the videos: I thought 'what is he wearing?' But you do it, walk away and think about that next move."

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: This year I'd like to recycle more through the green box service but am concerned that I might not be able to fit everything into my box. Do you have any suggestions?

A: Ensure that you squash materials such as juice cartons and cardboard boxes. Where possible, similar items should also be grouped together. Alternatively, you can put additional items into a plastic bag – not a black bin bag – and leave them next to your green box for collection. Please leave extra bags open and ensure it is clear they are for recycling.

Residents can also request additional green boxes using the contact details below.

Grow, cook, eat

Club members at work in the garden (above) and cooking the food they have grown (below)

AN innovative, green-fingered group in Hackney is looking for new recruits.

The Grow, Cook, Eat Club for eight to 12-year-olds meets at St Mary's Secret Garden, on the corner of Appleby Street and Pearson Street, just behind the Geffrye Museum.

The popular after-school club, funded by the Council, shows that children do like vegetables – especially if they have sown the seeds and watched them grow.

“It's a great way of getting the five a day message across to children”

Members plant vegetables and herbs, and then learn how to use them in tasty and nutritious dishes the whole family can enjoy. “It's a great way of getting the five a day message across to children,” said Catherine Birkett, who runs the club on Monday evenings.

At the end-of-term party last year, Shoreditch Spa Healthy Eating Programme joined in to show the children how to make delicious pizzas and spiced apple punch.

Even in January, there's plenty of colour for visitors to enjoy in the community garden, which is open on weekdays from 9am to 5pm.

The on-site shop offers a chance to buy plants, herbs, preserves, and garden supplies.

RESIDENTS are being offered a chance to attend free workshops that includes cookery demonstrations, and advice on how to save money by cooking delicious meals from leftovers.

Participants can also take away a free cookbook, which includes recipes based on leftover food.

The ‘cook and taste’ sessions are part of the Love Food, Hate Waste campaign that aims to raise awareness of the need to reduce food waste.

Joseb Chakvetadze from Newington Green took part in a session last month. He said: “The small groups made the session very conversational, which helped with the exchange

Pupils recycle for the future

By Naomi Ocansey

PUPILS have been getting some tips on how to keep Hackney clean.

The Council-funded ecoACTIVE workshops about recycling and cutting down on waste use a hands-on approach to get the message across.

The sessions, which take place in primary schools over a five-week period, also teach students about what happens to waste beyond the bin.

"The children have a clearer understanding about the importance of putting litter in the bins and the impact it has on the environment," said Gayhurst teacher Marsha Constable, after a litter session at the E8 school.

Jubilee Primary, N16, pupils took part in a five-week compost project. The school's Environmental Co-ordinator, Amanda Williams, said: "The education programmes have been fantastic at raising awareness of composting and recycling at school. The children loved learning about the worms and compost and are aiming to start a composting campaign."

The Council also provides free recycling collections for all schools in Hackney. They can

A sticker book, decorative stickers for classroom bins, and a board to write the name of the recycling monitor will complement cow print recycling bins.

Money for old boilers

PRIVATE tenants and landlords could save £400 by replacing an old 'G-rated' boiler with a new, energy-efficient one through a Government scheme.

The new Boiler Scrappage Scheme allows residents to claim £400 back from the cost of installing an 'A-rated' boiler or renewable heat system in place of a 'G-rated' one.

Householders should apply for a voucher to be redeemed within 12 weeks; pay up front for an approved contractor to carry out the work; and claim the £400 back from the Energy Saving Trust, which promises to pay within 25 days.

It is estimated that there are currently around three and a half million homes in England with low efficiency boilers rated 'G' or worse. A-rated boilers use less fuel to provide the same level of heat, so have cheaper running costs – saving on average £235 a year.

Applicants aged under 60 must be scrapping a 'G-rated' boiler that is in working order, while those aged 60 and over can scrap a 'G-rated' boiler that is not necessarily operational.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Environmental Sustainability, said: "We are committed to making Hackney the greenest borough in London, and schemes like this one can be useful in helping residents reduce their carbon footprint and save money as well."

For info call: 0800 512 012 or visit: www.government-boiler-scrappagescheme.info/eligibilitycheck.php

HACKNEY Free and Parochial CE Secondary School is looking for memorabilia, stories and former students to form part of its 490th anniversary.

The school said it is particularly interested in old uniforms to display in a Hackney Museum exhibition planned for March.

“We're interested in getting more old blazers, which were phased out about 20 years ago”

Head teacher Richard Brown said: “We’ve had a great response: old scarves, ties and other designs we haven’t seen before. We’re particularly interested in getting more old blazers, which were phased out here around 20 years ago.

“One of the reasons for the exhibition is that the school is currently being rebuilt and we want to continue to preserve it’s long history. We’re currently conducting tours of the old site for former students – some dating back as far as 50 years ago have visited to remember their time here.”

Hackney Free and Parochial was founded by the rector of the parish of Hackney, Christopher Urswick, in 1520 and is one of England’s oldest non-fee paying schools. It originally catered for just 12 boys and now serves around 700 young people aged 11-16.

The school’s GCSE results were among the 23 most improved in the Capital in 2009, with the percentage of students achieving at least five A*-C grades, including English and Maths, increasing by nine per cent.

Hackney Free is one of three secondary schools already under construction as part of Hackney’s Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme.

The school will be rebuilt on its existing site in Paragon Road over two major stages, to cause as little disruption as possible to lessons. Students will move into the new sections of the building as they’re completed. A third stage will create an external play and sports space and landscaping around the new building. The superstructure for the first stage is up, and all work is due to be complete in December 2011.

Hackney’s BSF programme has been developed by the Council in partnership with The Learning Trust, and has received more than £160million in Government funding.

It aims to transform all secondary and special needs schools in the borough by 2015.

MORE INFO

If you have a story, picture or object linked to the school, call Samantha Robson on: 020 8985 2430. The exhibition is due to open at Hackney Museum on 18 March. For info on BSF visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/bsf

Hens with Knives

Arcola Theatre, Arcola St, E8, 2-27 February

David Harrower's 1995 poetic love triangle fable of the difficulties facing a nameless woman, her adulterous husband and an outcast has been brought to the Arcola stage.

The play explores concepts of Western modern civilisation, specifically, the social shift from feudal systems to capitalism.

Mass literacy features prominently as a narrative driving force, most noticeably as one of the protagonist's added learning opens up self-awareness – at the cost of being condemned as a heretic.

The show is directed by former Arcola Associate Director Serdir Bilis, and the cast features three actors returning to the Arcola Theatre: Phil Cheadle, Jodie McNee and Nathaniel Martello-White. Rarely staged in the Capital, it seeks success in East London due to its reverberation across languages and cultures.

Kings of the world

By Marcel Reinard*WorldService Project/EM*Vortex Jazz Bar, 11 Gillett Square, N16, 1 Feb

Music graduates WorldService Project (WSP) – comprising Tim Ower, saxophones; Raphael Clarkson, trombone; Conor Chaplin, bass; and Clapton's Dave Morecroft, piano – bring their brand of accessible but unruly jazz to the Vortex. Commentators vary on their style, citing British piano player John Taylor all the way to Radiohead, nevertheless their penchant for late-night funk and grooving beats leaves few in doubt as of the real driving force of their sound.

The quintet formed in 2008 and are steadily expanding their enthusiasts with distinctive musical flow. Thoroughly experimental, they also prove improvisations doesn't necessarily have to mean incomprehensible off-notes and key changes.

Their sets, designed to demonstrate their range of music skill, touches on The Cinematic Orchestra, Bill Evans and Guy Barker. Previous performances included an easy-listening jazz session, with the second expressing a more abstract style.

In a double bill night, second band EM also features, led by piano player Dan Ecclestone and featuring Gavin Broom (trumpet), Jamie Michael Harris (soprano and tenor sax), Gareth Huw Davies (double bass), Jamie Trowell (drums) and Thierry Deneux (percussion).

Memories of LGBT life

By Marcel Reinard

Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Trans (LGBT) History Month 2010, various venues, throughout February

HACKNEY has joined up with Tower Hamlets to celebrate LGBT History Month 2010, giving visitors a greater choice of offerings in East London.

This year's theme focuses on museums, libraries and the arts, and a varied programme of activities are set to take place throughout February in both boroughs.

Just a few days after Valentine's Day, poets Sharon Morris and Peter Daniels present The Love That Dares Not, an open invitation for an evening of love poems at CLR James Library in Dalston Lane (18 Feb).

Hackney Central Library, Reading Lane, is offering an afternoon to hear LGBT experiences and stories for Living Libraries (27 Feb). Behind the Mask exhibition at Hackney Museum, also in Reading Lane, probes how far people's identities are still hidden, and hopes to unveil precious stories from the LGBT community.

There will be LGBT Month film screenings at the Idea Store, E3, with a free film – and free popcorn – every night.

The Walk Proud LGBT History Project aims to collect memories of LGBT life in Hackney, which have largely gone unrecorded in archives and museums.

LGBT History Month was first celebrated in Britain in 2005. It aims to showcase the histories of lesbian, gay, bisexual and trans people in the UK and Ireland, and tackle negative discrimination by presenting honest appraisals of LGBT lives.

Put your writing to the test

All stories by
Marcel Reinard

A YOUTH information organisation is looking for aspiring journalists to show off their penmanship and build up experience by covering the Discover Young Hackney (DYH) Festival 2010.

The Council's youth arts and culture festival kicked off with a talent show at the Hackney Empire on 22 January, and continues throughout February. Young writers now have the opportunity to tell the inside stories that happen during the five-week event.

The project is being run by youth website What's Up Information. Founder Lucy Ferguson said that What's Up was excited about working with DYH and the partnership could also help those aged 11-19 discover new skills.

Every year DYH offers a wide range of arts events promoting participation and training for young people with a range of workshops run by creative organisations. These include classes in animation writing and performing drama, graphics, publishing, digital photography and printmaking.

What's Up Information is a resource that offers advice on jobs, training, education and volunteering for young people, as well as information on events in London.

The website also encourages young people to become advisers by telling its creators what they think of the site.

If you want to get involved or just want to develop your writing talents, e-mail: lucy@whatsupinformation.com; or visit: www.whatsupinformation.com

Getting set for 2012

GAINSBOROUGH Primary School pupils have joined the list of young ambassadors getting a behind the scenes look at the development of London 2012.

On 18 January the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games awarded the school a plaque and certificate to acknowledge its involvement in the London 2012 education programme. Gainsborough now has access to competitions and 2012-related opportunities on the Get Set network, which aims to get children and young people excited and inspired by the Games.

The Hackney Wick school is one of 20 across the five Host Boroughs taking part in the Construction Crew project. Run by the Olympic Delivery Authority, the scheme promotes leadership and responsibility by offering two Year Six pupils the chance to regularly see progress on the Olympic Park first-hand.

They will act as ambassadors for the ODA by sharing their experiences with fellow pupils, friends and families.

MORE INFO

To become a member of the Get Set network, schools and colleges need to register, showcase student-led work and complete a short application. Visit: <http://getset.london2012.com/en/home>

Specialist support for mums & babies

By
Jennifer Riley

AN expanded mother and baby unit has been opened at the Homerton Hospital.

“Supporting women, their infants and families from the earliest time in their lives will reap long-term rewards”

The new state of the art wing will offer admission to women who experience moderate to severe mental health difficulties during pregnancy, or after giving birth, and who cannot be cared for at home.

For the last 10 years the facility only offered four beds, but now the refurbished unit has 10 en-suite bedrooms. Amenities include a room to support mothers with twins; facilities to meet the needs of women with physical disabilities; and a high dependency suite.

The unit also now has an enclosed, landscaped garden with a play area so visiting families can have fun, while making sure

The new wing offers specialist support for women with mental health difficulties who cannot be cared for at home mothers and babies have fresh air each day.

Dr Liz McDonald, Consultant Psychiatrist, said: “The perinatal mental health team are very excited about the new unit and the unique facilities and experience it can offer to women and their babies at a difficult time in their lives.

“Supporting women, their infants and families from the earliest time in their lives will reap long-term rewards for families affected by mental illness.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

Give your health the once-over

RESIDENTS aged 40 to 74 who are concerned about their health are being offered free check-ups at local libraries. Experts will ask simple questions about health, age and family history. Measurements such as height, weight and blood pressure will also be taken.

Each check lasts about half an hour, after which people will be given an assessment of their risk of developing heart disease, stroke, type 2 diabetes, and kidney disease in the next 10 years. Results will be explained and a personal plan developed to help maintain health or reduce risk.

The first roadshow takes place from 2-5pm at Stoke Newington Library on 14 February. More roadshows will take place over the following weeks at Clapton, Shoreditch and Hackney Central libraries.

For more info call the patient advice and liaison service on: 0800 923 0107; or: 020 7683 4453.

Look after your cervix

AS part of European Cervical Cancer Week, NHS City and Hackney is reminding women and girls about the availability of cervical screening – sometimes called a smear test – and vaccination.

Cervical cancer is the second most common cancer among women under 35 years of age. Every year more than 2,800 women will be diagnosed and 1,000 will die from the disease in the UK.

A vaccine is provided through school nurses to girls aged 12-13, in line with recommendations from the Department of Health, and the vaccine is offered to all girls up until the age of 18 through schools, colleges and GP practices.

Women over 25 are routinely invited for screening and GPs can be contacted for additional appointments or advice. For info visit: www.ecca.info

Street search for quitters

STOP Smoking teams have been combing Hackney streets in search of people keen to quit smoking in 2010.

Residents registering an interest will be booked into one of several stop smoking clinics throughout the borough, which offer support for quitting goals.

The street initiative will be repeated over two weeks in late February.

People who sign up in January for the in-store NHS stop smoking service at the Dalston, Stamford Hill or Hackney Central branches of Boots will be offered free stop smoking medication, such as nicotine replacement therapy. Those who reach the four-week quitting stage will also be rewarded with a £20 gift voucher.

For more info visit: www.cityandhackney.nhs.uk/health-issues/smoking.aspx

Spread the word, not the virus

RESIDENTS who fall ill with a winter virus that causes diarrhoea and vomiting are being urged to stay away from Homerton Hospital to protect patients and staff.

Norovirus, or the ‘winter vomiting bug’, which doctors describe as ‘unpleasant but rarely serious’, is spread easily from one person to another and lasts between one and two days.

NHS advice is that people who catch the virus won’t require hospital treatment except in

Norovirus sufferers are unlikely to need hospital treatment exceptional circumstances, as the illness tends to run its course without medical attention. However, people can remain infectious for up to 48 hours after they stop vomiting.

Good personal hygiene helps prevent the virus spreading, so wash hands thoroughly with soap and water before eating and after going to the toilet.

In a bid to teach

Hackney children about how to protect themselves and not spread bugs, the Health Protection Agency is now arming every school with a fun teaching pack about common infections called ‘e-Bug’. The pack explains about viruses and bacteria, hygiene, vaccines and antibiotics.

Hackney

Carysfort Road Stoke Newington.

Past notes

Clockwise from above: Postcard of Carysfort Road from around the time Michael Kemble set up his business; Ordnance Survey map from the mid-1930s showing Kemble's factories; a deed from 1913 leasing 97b Carysfort Road to Joseph Wallis & Son; a 1958 share certificate for Kemble & Co Ltd

By Siân Mogridge,
Archivist

IN October last year the UK's last large-scale piano maker made its final piano and closed its factory.

Kemble & Co's factory had been based in Milton Keynes for 40 years. But the business, founded in 1911 by Michael Kemble, started life in Carysfort Road in Stoke Newington. Carysfort Road was mainly residential. But there were – and still are – industrial buildings behind the houses on the north side. Kemble's business at number 97b was successful, and by 1929 he had also acquired 53b, formerly the factory of another piano maker, Joseph Wallis & Son.

By 1919 Kemble had 90 workers on its books, so would have been well known locally as an employer. Nationally and internationally the company was also becoming known, for the quality of its pianos.

In 1947 the business was incorporated as a limited company, and Michael Kemble and M V Jacobs, who had been his business partner for some years, became directors.

In 1969 Kemble & Co left Stoke Newington and moved to Milton Keynes. The new factory was larger, with ground floor production facilities, as opposed to the multi-storey buildings on Carysfort Road – an important issue when dealing with something as heavy as a piano.

Despite the closure, Kemble-designed pianos will continue to be made. In 1986 Yamaha became the major shareholder in Kemble & Co, saving the company from the financial difficulties of recession. Yamaha will continue to make Kemble pianos in Asia, but the British Kemble piano is now a thing of the past.

Kemble & Co did not forget its roots, and donated its records to Hackney Archives. These include a fascinating mix of documents.

There are property deeds for Carysfort Road, plans for the Bletchley Factory, documents on the company's incorporation, records of how individual pianos were made, and sales brochures that show the different types of piano that Kemble manufactured over the years. Between them, they give much of the company's history.

Kemble's are not the only business records available at the Archives, and new collections are always welcome. If you know of a company that might like to donate its records, please call the number below. You could help preserve an important part of the borough's history.

FOR FOOD THOUGHT

James Sharples, Senior Environmental Health Officer

FOR five years, James has worked the kitchens, warehouses, and backyards of Hackney – and still enjoys his job. He is one eighth of the Council's team of Environmental Health Officers.

James explained: "What I like best about this role is how varied a day can be. In the morning, I might be inspecting a spa pool for safety and maintenance. By the afternoon, I may have inspected a café or a take-away that we've had complaints about."

"Hackney's cultural diversity means there's a huge range of food, ingredients and preparation methods. What's interesting about my job is adapting to different approaches, while making sure that all Hackney restaurants and workplaces stay safe and clean."

And the worst part of the job? "Sometimes there are shocks. I have investigated large quantities of rotting meat, which smells terrible. And I have had to look into horrible industrial injuries. "It's not simply about giving fines and telling people off. Most of this job is geared towards educating people and preventing problems."

By
Miranda Yates

A DIVERSE and ever-changing array of restaurants and cafés are a vibrant part of everyday life in Hackney.

Behind the scenes of any meal out in the borough, there is a team of specialists whose role is to help keep standards high at food establishments.

The Council's team of eight Environmental Health Officers are dedicated to the thorough and regular inspection of Hackney's eateries.

They also look into infectious disease outbreaks, dirty premises, and complaints about the climate and temperature in workplaces. They assess whether work vehicles or lifts are safe and properly maintained, and visit pubs and clubs to check for safe noise levels inside.

"The role of the environmental health officer has definitely evolved," explained Ken Marshall, Acting Principal Environmental Health Officer. "Of course we still inspect for food hygiene and other health risks. And we have powers to enforce changes to ensure restaurants are clean, safe and compliant with the law. But now we work in a much more hands-on way with managers and staff at

Ken Marshall makes a thorough inspection of a kitchen

Hackney's restaurants and cafes."

Help for businesses includes free training in food management, while residents can go online to find details of food hygiene and management standards in Hackney restaurants. The "Scores on the Doors" star-ratings are also displayed on some restaurant doors, giving retailers an incentive to keep things up to scratch.

An artist's impression of how the new docking stations might look

Bike hire countdown

By
Rebecca Hobson

BIKE enthusiasts will be able to enjoy their first half an hour of riding for free when the London Cycle Hire scheme launches in the summer.

Hackney's cycle hire stations will be located in Hoxton and Shoreditch. There are plans for 14 stations in the borough, each holding about 28 bikes.

People wanting to use one of the new hire cycles will only need to pay a £1 daily or £5 weekly access fee, or take out a £45 annual membership to be able to use the scheme.

There will be no extra charge so long as the bicycle is returned within 30 minutes. After the first free half hour of rental, hire will cost £1 for a journey of between 30 minutes and one hour, £4 for up to 90 minutes, and £6 for up to two hours.

The hire charges then increase incrementally up to a maximum hire period of 24 hours.

The scheme is likely to see a total of around 6,000 bikes available for hire at 400 docking stations across London. People will be able to ride anywhere they want, provided they return their bike to a docking station.

The scheme is expected to generate around 40,000 extra daily cycle trips in central London.

David Brown, Director of Surface Transport at TfL, said: "This brand new public transport system for central London will be a low cost and affordable way to explore the Capital, whether for work or leisure."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Take a walk

PUT your best foot forward in the New Year and take part in free 'Winter Wanders' in Hackney on 30 January organised by Walk London.

The walks are a healthy way to begin the New Year and a great way to discover new parts of the borough. Everyone is invited to come to the two free walks by turning up at the meeting points. The walks are part of the 'Walking towards the Games' series, which takes in areas where the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games will take place. The first route from Stoke Newington to Hackney Wick is four miles. The meeting point is Stoke Newington Rail Station at 2pm. It takes in the Lee Navigation from Springfield Park past Walthamstow and Hackney Marshes. The second walk, from Stoke Newington to Mile End, meets at Stoke Newington Station at 11am and will pass through Hackney Downs and Victoria Park. For more info call the Walk London hotline on: 0870 240 6094; or visit: www.walklondon.org.uk

Share the road safely

Hackney has a proud reputation of being a 'cycling borough', with eight per cent of all residents' journeys made by bike.

The Council encourages sustainable transport in Hackney, and cycling helps to reduce congestion, improve the environment, and has important health benefits.

Many local people both drive and cycle, and Hackney road users generally get along well. Historically, however, drivers and cyclists have not always seen eye-to-eye.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Road safety and sustainable transport are priorities for us here in Hackney. With New Year's resolutions currently being pledged, we are encouraging everyone who travels through the borough to follow a few steps to help drivers and cyclists share the road in a spirit of mutual respect and cooperation."

Be a better driver:

- Don't block bike boxes at traffic lights; give cyclists room when overtaking; avoid squeezing past on narrow roads
- Use mirrors regularly to spot cyclists when turning left; when opening doors; and before reversing
- At a T-junction, cyclists on the main road have priority. Wait until they have passed before pulling out

Be a better cyclist:

- Cycling on the pavement is prohibited. It is slower, more hazardous and makes pedestrians nervous. Riding on the road is quicker, with fewer obstructions
- Follow the Highway Code. Stop at red lights and use bike boxes at traffic lights.
- Free lessons in safe cycling are available through the Council for beginners, seasoned commuters, and for families

Don't miss out on cycle funding

GRANTS of up to £10,000 are available to help encourage residents to switch to pedal power.

Cyclists, schools, community groups and charities in Hackney are being urged to apply for the funding, administered by the London Cycle Campaign (LCC).

The LCC is looking for ideas that will inspire people of all ages and backgrounds to take to their bicycles. The first round is open until 5 February, but applicants who miss this deadline will have another chance to apply when the second round is open, from 8 to 26 March.

The STA Bikes and Wilton Estate project in Hackney benefitted from the fund last year when it received £4,824 to provide adults and children with cycle training and for cycle maintenance workshops for young people in the youth centre.

Job Profile Jamie Millen

Appeals & Complaints Officer talks about three vacancies in the Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit Department

What are the main responsibilities of the role?

The department provides financial assistance to customers in the borough who are unable to pay their rent or Council Tax. This varied role includes investigating and resolving appeals or complaints regarding Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit entitlement raised by customers. The team responds to enquiries from councillors, MPs, and the Local Government Ombudsman on behalf of the customers.

The role also involves preparing and presenting cases at tribunals. A wealth of knowledge and experience is required to interpret and apply the ever-changing, complex legislation.

In what ways is the role challenging?

The team plays an important role for the Benefits Service, in that it is our responsibility to make the final decision as to how issues are resolved. Customers have high expectations of the service. The team are under additional pressure not only to meet specific deadlines, but also to ensure correct decisions are made, while giving consideration to customers' needs, which can be sensitive at times.

How is the job rewarding?

Being able to phone a customer and tell them that additional Housing Benefit or Council Tax Benefit is going to be paid. Knowing that you are responsible for turning around their financial situation does make the job rewarding.

PRISON?

The man appears contrite, but he is an alcoholic. Sending him to prison would do nothing to treat his addiction.

COMMUNITY SENTENCE?

YOU DECIDE BECOME A MAGISTRATE

You don't need legal experience or qualifications to serve as a magistrate.

You do need to be able to sit in court for a minimum of 26 half-days each year. Magistrates aren't paid, but many employers allow time off with pay, or you can claim a loss of earnings allowance. We welcome applications from all sectors of the community.

THIS is the latest in a series of recipes courtesy of Water House – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Chef Ben Spice shares one of his favourite recipes for venison.

"Deer are voracious eaters – attacking our crops with great gusto – and with few of their natural predators remaining in this country their numbers spiral upwards quickly if left unchecked" says Ben.

"Farmers have two options to control numbers. To shoot them each year – and if they target the population carefully this helps to keep it strong, healthy and vibrant – or to remove the woodland and scrubland in which deer flourish.

"Because at Water we are desperately keen to avoid deforestation and habitat loss, we are enthusiastic about hunted meat."

Venison pie and a host of other hearty dishes are available to warm up winter at the Water House.

Venison pie, smoked mash & red cabbage

Makes 6 large or 8 small pies

Preparation time

Ingredients

For the pie filling:

- 1kg diced venison
- Venison fat
- 200g fresh peeled baby pearl onions
- 200g peeled and diced carrot
- 200g peeled and diced beetroot
- 100g finely diced shallot
- 1 tbsp black mustard seeds
- 4-6 cloves of garlic minced
- 1 pinch grated horseradish/wasabi powder
- 1 sprig thyme
- 4-5 fresh bay leaves
- 1.5 litres venison, lamb or beef stock
- 500ml dry red wine
- Smash and grind 6-8 juniper berries, 10-12 Szechuan peppercorns, 20 black peppercorns, and half a stick of liquorice root in a pestle and mortar

Method

- Heat pan, add a little fat and the venison and sauté until coloured lightly and then put aside
- In the same pan add shallot; carrot and beetroot and sweat until shallot is translucent. Add the garlic and mustard seeds, thyme and bay leaves, sweat for another minute then add ground spices, and finally wine and stock
- Bring this to a simmer and cook slowly at about 100C for 4-6 hrs. Cool, strain cooking liquid and reserve.

- In a pan melt your butter and add 50g of flour. Over a medium heat allow flour to cook off in butter until brown. Whisk roux into liquid, taste and adjust seasoning. Put your meat and veg back into gravy

Ingredients

For the pastry:

- 500g plain flour
- 250g butter
- 100ml of cider vinegar approx

Method

- Put butter in freezer for 30 minutes
- Grate butter with large grater into flour
- Using the tips of fingers and thumbs rub butter and flour together until mixture resemble breadcrumbs.
- Slowly add vinegar, and water as necessary, until crumbs have bound into pastry
- Leave to rest in fridge for 30 minutes

Assembly

- Roll out pastry and line pie dish or dishes, letting pastry hang over the edges. Egg wash the edge; pop on pastry lid and trim.
- Bake until pastry is golden brown and filling is piping hot

Wick's future

THERE'S still time for residents to give their views on the draft Hackney Wick Area Action Plan, which will guide future developments in the area. Hackney Wick will undergo great changes in the coming years, a combined result of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games and private and public-sector investment. This has resulted in the need for a strategy to manage change. The draft clearly sets out a future vision for the area and addresses some key ideas. These include creating a distinctive neighbourhood hub around Hackney Wick Station and harnessing the benefits of the area's waterways. To have your say before 9 February visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/hackneywick For info call: 020 8356 8150; or e-mail: strategic.delivery@hackney.gov.uk

Better garden

VIEWS are being sought on proposed improvements to Kynaston Gardens in Stoke Newington.

The Council has asked Groundwork London to carry out a consultation among residents, to get ideas about developing the gardens, before applying for funding for the project. The results and ideas will be displayed at a drop-in event at Kynaston Gardens on 20 February from 12noon-3pm. There will also be a chance to speak to the Groundwork staff. To take part before 5 February, visit: www.groundworksurveys.org.uk/kynastongardens For info call Nimish Shah on: 020 8985 1755; or e-mail: nimish.shah@groundwork.org.uk

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm
